

HER ONE UNMOURNED

Girl Who Saved Twenty is Buried as Pauper.

NO TRIBUTE FROM SURVIVORS

Association Even Refuses to Pay Funeral Services, and Body Barely Is Kept from Going to Potter's Field—Young Woman Died Unfriendly and in Poverty in Hotel.

New York, Dec. 6.—Commended for bravery by the Empress of Germany, receiving a medal and certificate of honor from the mayor of New York, only to die in poverty and obscurity, the body of Cassie McManus, heroine of the Slocum steamboat disaster, rescued at the last moment from a stone slab in the morgue, whence it was about to be tagged and consigned to potter's field, was this afternoon decently buried in a plot in Calvary Cemetery.

It was another case of the ingratitude of the New York public. When the Slocum caught fire two years ago, sending to death hundreds of persons, this Irish immigrant girl, a nurse in the detention hospital on North Brothers Island, rescued more than a score. Only once had these who were saved seen her. That was more than two years ago, when the fire cracked about them. When their cries were being added to the screams of the dying, the nurse had carried them to safety. She was a powerful swimmer.

Only Two Friends Present.

Clustered about the draped casket in the chapel of the burial company, were only two persons, among the score or more present, who had known the woman, and they had only been acquainted with her during the last year. Not one of those she saved came to pay a last tribute to the woman who had done so much for them.

A floral wreath was sent by the organization of Survivors of the Slocum disaster and was the only recognition the society ever paid this woman, either in life or death. The officers of the organization explained their failure to subscribe by claiming that they had collected a fund to defray her burial when they heard her body was in the morgue, but had discontinued it when it was learned, so they said, that another charitable source had volunteered to pay the expenses. Not even was a provision made for a headstone for the grave of this heroine.

Dies Homeless and Alone.

A dozen other wreaths came, and bore merely such words as "A friend." With no relatives in this country, but with a father and mother in Ireland, proudly exhibiting to their neighbors the proofs of their daughter's bravery—for Cassie had sent the Empress' resolution, the medal, and the certificate of honor to the old folks—the girl had no one here to whom she could turn for aid. Her husband, to whom she was married but a year ago, was out of work, and had been for months while his wife was dying of consumption in a miserable East Side tenement. Even these to whom she also disclosed her identity were mere acquaintances. She had known them less than a year.

Criticizing the ingratitude of the Slocum survivors, Rev. Dr. Stephen Merritt read the Episcopal burial service, and spoke of the great contrast between the noble action of the woman and the obscurity in which she died, said:

"The Master saved ten and one returned to thank Him; this poor woman risked her life time after time and saved a score. Not one had returned to thank her; not one has shown any gratitude."

BOTH SIDES LOSE THIS SUIT.

Court Makes School Board Keep Property It Doesn't Want.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Rockville, Md., Dec. 6.—Judge James B. Henderson, of this city, has just decided a case in which neither the plaintiff nor defendant is satisfied, and an appeal has been taken to the Maryland Court of Appeals. The board of school commissioners of this county had sued Henry H. Cline to recover the title and possession of the old public school property at Bethesda.

When the schoolhouse was finished the school trustees turned over to the defendant the key to the old schoolhouse, and he went in and took possession, claiming it as an heir of his father. The court held that the school authorities had no salable title to the property, could not dispose of it, could only use it for school purposes, and held it in trust for the original donors, who are, so far as all investigation has gone, unknown. Judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff for 1 cent, damages and costs.

WOMEN OUST TWO BURGLARS.

Negroes Flee When They Put Up Determined Front.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Cumberland, Md., Dec. 6.—James Walker and Irvin Weston, colored, of Roanoke, Va., were arrested at Rockwood to-day, charged with entering the residence of Mrs. C. P. Coughlin. The latter and her granddaughter, Miss Mabel Marlette, discovered the men in the house late at night, and they were packing up a lot of plunder.

The women told them to leave, making such determined threats that the negroes fled, leaving their loot behind. They made a full confession.

Old Man Killed by Train.

Greensboro, N. C., Dec. 6.—Early this morning at the Walker Avenue Railway Crossing, W. C. Weaver, a prominent citizen of this town, was struck by a locomotive of the A. & O. R. R. and sustained injuries which will prove fatal. His skull was fractured and several ribs broken. Mr. Weaver is an ex-Confederate soldier, seventy years old, and operates a dairy.

Must Hang for Murder.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Bristol, Va., Dec. 6.—In the Circuit Court of Scott County, Virginia, at Gate City, this evening, a jury found Wesley Wilkes guilty of the murder of Otis Ross, and he was sentenced to be hanged at Gate City on February 17, 1907. It developed that the murder was premeditated and without provocation.

Oyster Bars Survey Finished.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 6.—According to advices received from Rodkin Creek this morning the shellfish commission's engineering corps to-day completed the survey of natural oyster bars in Anne Arundel County. The houseboat Oyster, from which this work has been done, will be towed to Annapolis and placed out of commission on Saturday.

Appointed to Maryland Board.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 6.—Gov. Warfield has issued a commission to A. Webster Smith, of Baltimore, as a member of the board of State aids and charities, vice himself, failed to qualify.

MAY NOT HOLD TWO JOBS.

Annapolis Sheriff Forbids Deputies All Side Lines.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Annapolis, Md., Dec. 6.—Sheriff Joshua Lenthic, of Anne Arundel County, to-day mailed notifications to all of his deputies throughout the county, informing them that those of his force who now hold the additional office of county constable must submit to the board of county commissioners by next Tuesday their resignations as such, or transmit to him their resignation from his force of deputies.

"Many of my deputies are personal friends, but I have made it a rule in the administration of my office to let no ulterior motive interfere with my duty as sheriff, as I see it," said he to-day. "I do not feel," he continued, "that the best ends can be served by combining a salaried position with one which derives its remuneration from the fees of office, particularly where the duties are so nearly akin, as in the offices of deputy sheriff and constable."

Two or three of the present deputy sheriffs of Anne Arundel are also receiving fees out of their magistrate cases, though holding at the same time the office of constable, and it is understood that the order of their chief to give up one job or the other will not be received placidly by these. One of these officers has already been heard from, and his idea of the propriety or impropriety of the "two-job-same-duty" scheme does not agree at all with Sheriff Lenthic's stand.

MRS. BIRDSONG IS INSANE

Woman's Attorneys Show by Questions Their Line of Defense.

Witnesses Testify for Dr. Butler, with Whom They Believe the Woman Was Infatuated.

Hazlehurst, Miss., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Angie Birdsong, the young wife of Dr. James F. Birdsong, and the niece of United States Senator A. J. McLaurin, is hiding behind the insanity plea in her defense of the charge of having murdered her family physician, Dr. Thomas H. Butler. This was clearly indicated to-day by counsel for Mrs. Birdsong in propounding this question to R. N. Wilburn, a State witness.

"Did or did not Dr. Butler ever tell you of his intimacy with Mrs. Birdsong, and did he express an opinion as to whether or not she was sane or insane?"

Attorneys for the State instantly opposed this question, and practically the entire day was consumed in argument as to whether this testimony should be admitted.

Judge Miller just before adjournment for the day refused to admit the testimony unless it was shown that statements reflected upon the witness. W. A. Russell, an official of Lawrence County, started the curious crowds when he swore that Dr. Butler had told him of his familiarity with Mrs. Birdsong. Mrs. Birdsong, witness said, related that Mrs. Birdsong appeared to be infatuated with him, and had often sent him secret messages to visit her home.

The idea of the woman, according to the witness, was that she wanted Dr. Butler to see one of her children who was ill. On all these occasions, Dr. Birdsong was absent from home. Dr. Butler had told witness that some times he accommodated Mrs. Birdsong and went to meet her, but frequently he refused.

ASKS $25,000 FOR LOST LOVE.

Baltimore Husband Sues Friend for Alienation of Wife's Affections.

Baltimore, Dec. 6.—Suit for alleged alienation of affections was brought in the City Court to-day by Samuel Stehley, jr., against Benjamin J. Hiss. Mr. Stehley claims $25,000 damages.

About two weeks ago Mrs. Helen B. Stehley filed a suit in Part 2 of the Circuit Court against Mr. Stehley for an absolute divorce. Later, Mr. Stehley, who is an employee of the York River Line, filed an answer, denying the charges made by his wife, and applied for an absolute divorce on a crossbill. In his crossbill he named Mr. Hiss as corespondent.

Court adjourned until to-morrow morning.

The receivership was forced by the heavy losses of these companies in San Francisco, and is asked for by the Virginia policy holders.

SMALLPOX STOPS COURT.

Cleared for Killing Friend.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Baltimore, Dec. 6.—John C. Russell was brought into the Criminal Court to-day on the indictment charging him with the murder of Harrison W. Wroten on September 9 last. The case, however, was settled by State's Attorney Owens, as the State's officers are convinced that Russell accidentally shot Wroten while under the influence of liquor. Russell was flourishing a pistol, when it was discharged. Wroten was a friend of Russell, and there had been no trouble before the shooting.

WIFE'S SUIT SECRET

C. H. Smith Made Defendant in Mysterious Case.

FAMILY TROUBLES HINTED

Parties to Litigation Refuse to Reveal Nature of Proceedings, but Attorneys Say Amicable Settlement Will Probably Be Submitted to Alexandria Court for Approval.

WASHINGTON HERALD BUREAU, (By T. Johnson 12.)

Courtesy of Prince and Royal Streets, Alexandria, Va., Dec. 6.—Courtland H. Smith, one of the best known horsemen in Virginia, whose fine estate, the Hampton Stock Farm, is situated about three miles from this city, is made defendant in a suit in equity filed to-day by his wife, Mrs. Charles Herbert Smith, in the Alexandria County Circuit Court. Only the memorandum, which does not disclose the nature of the suit, was recorded to-day, but the bill, it is stated, will be presented at the next rule day, which is Monday, December 10. The name of Attorney John M. Johnson, of this city, appears as counsel for the plaintiff, and it is stated that the defendant is represented by Attorneys Norton & Boedts and others. Some of the counsel concerned in the litigation would make any statement when seen to-day as to the character of the proceedings, but it was asserted by one lawyer that an amicable settlement would be reached which the court would be asked to approve.

While it will not be generally known until the bill is filed what the exact purpose of the action is, the suit is understood to be connected with certain domestic allegations to have existed for some time between Mr. Smith and his wife. Recently it has been rumored in this city that domestic troubles had arisen between Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and that the matter would result in litigation.

The suggestion has been made that the proceedings will take place in chambers, which is not infrequently the case in Virginia, but it could not be learned to-day whether this will be done or whether the hearing will be had in open court. The proceedings will be before Judge Charles E. Nicol.

Since their marriage several years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Smith have resided at the Hampton Stock Farm. Mrs. Smith was a Miss Herbert, of Baltimore, and is a member of the Virginia family of that name.

Negro Show Brings Woe.

There were troublesome times in Alexandria to-night for "Happy Days in Dixie," a theatrical performance billed for the opera house, under the auspices of the Minutemen's Social Club, a colored organization of this city. A company of twenty-six colored people had been ordered in Washington for the special purpose of appearing before an Alexandria audience of colored folk to sing about the good old times in the sunny South. With Clarence Logan, the proprietor of the show, at the head, the actors marched upon the stage, and at the appointed time, burst forth in the strains of the opening chorus. But the curtain did not ascend, nor did it move when the effort was repeated again and again.

The performers began to see the necessity of doing something. Looking out they started into a startling array of empty seats. The few persons scattered about the hall didn't represent enough money to pay the rent. But when the show failed to proceed the auditors raised a howl for the affair. Soon the rumpus resulted in a call to the police station for an officer, and Policeman Sherwood appeared and put Logan under arrest.

He protested that he had not received a cent of the admission money, and was willing to continue the show, but by the time most of the other performers had hurried away. Logan was locked up at the station-house, and the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was lodged against him. He will be given a hearing before Justice Catton in the Police Court to-morrow morning.

Fix Christmas Holidays.

The regular monthly meeting of the city school board was held in the Peabody school building, this evening, with Luther H. Thompson presiding. Several bills were audited, and it was decided that the Christmas holidays of the public schools shall extend from December 21 to January 2.

The Lady Maccabees of this city have elected the following officers for the ensuing term: Mrs. J. G. Cockey, past commander; Mrs. Amy C. Weech, commander; Miss Annie Craig, lieutenant commander; Mrs. Annie Bladen, recorder; Mrs. Miller, sergeant; Mrs. J. H. Mansfield, mistress-at-arms; Mrs. Mattie Jones, chaplain; Miss Quigley, sentinel; Mrs. Peman, picket, and Mrs. Fannie Jones, captain of the guard.

The following officers for the ensuing term have been chosen by Alva Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles: Samuel Bendheim, past worthy president; Thomas Chancery, worthy president; George L. Simpson, worthy vice president; Ernest Deahl, worthy chaplain; Joseph H. West, worthy secretary; W. Wallace West, treasurer; Walter Hughes, worthy inside guard, and Thomas D. Downey, worthy outside guard.

George H. Hendrickson died this evening at the residence of J. R. Zimmerman, on South St. Asaph street. The deceased was forty-six years of age and unmarried. For some years he had been employed in one of the government departments in Washington. He had been in declining health for a long time, but his acute illness developed only a few days ago. Arrangements for the funeral will be made later. It is probable that the remains will be forwarded to Baltimore.

Silver Service for Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 6.—Definite announcement was made at the governor's office to-day that the presentation of the silver service from the State to the battle ship Virginia would take place at Portsmouth Navy Yard on December 15. The original plan was to have the ceremonies at Newport News.

Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 6.—The trial of James Temple Ellis, alias "Nigger Jim," for murder, was concluded this morning. The court, by Judge Boyd, rendered the verdict, finding the negro guilty of manslaughter. Ellis was a trial for shooting and killing Charles Gray, a railroad man, at Waverton, on November 12.

Middy Is Operated Upon.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 6.—Third-class Midshipman James Dayton, of Port Jefferson, N. Y., was to-day operated upon at the Naval Academy Hospital for appendicitis. The operation was performed by Dr. J. M. T. Flaney, of Baltimore, and was successful.

POST-OFFICE EMPLOYEE SHORT.

Assistant Postmaster White Must Answer for $1,200.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 6.—Charles H. White, for the past six years the assistant postmaster in this city, is charged with being short $1,200 in his accounts, according to an investigation made by Postmaster Alexander Chisholm and Post-offices Inspector Allen, which was concluded to-day.

While admitting that he is short in his accounts, Assistant Postmaster White declares that the shortage is not so great as is apparently shown by the investigation, but those in a position to know state that the shortage will reach $1,200.

The charge against Mr. White has created a sensation in this city, where the accused man has resided for nine years. He has enjoyed the implicit confidence of Postmaster Chisholm and his associates in the post-office, and had always been accurate and regular in his accounts. The funds, which were taken from the money-order account, disappeared after October 14 last, when his accounts were examined and found correct.

Mr. White is a native of Bedford County, Pa., and after working as a letter carrier in the local post-office for two years, secured the appointment of assistant postmaster through the influence of the late Senator Matthew Quay, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Ekins, of West Virginia. He is married and has six young children.

ANNEXATION IS HELD VALID

Supreme Court Sustains Extension of Richmond.

Court Also Sustains Act Creating Corporation Commission to Regulate Certain Corporations.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Richmond, Va., Dec. 6.—The Supreme Court of Virginia to-day sustained the lower courts in the Richmond annexation case, whereby the city gains 15,000 in population and an increase of one-fourth in area. Henrico County, from which the area was taken, appealed against the decision of the Circuit Court.

Judge Harrison, who delivered the opinion, takes the ground that the legislature being unable to say what amount should be annexed, as each case must be decided on its merits, was clearly within its constitutional rights in selecting the courts to carry out the law and pass judgment on the facts in each case.

The Richmond case is of wide interest, as it is the first under the new law, and a number of cities and towns in the State, which have annexation schemes on hand, will feel free to act.

In the case of the Winchester and Strasburg Railroad Company against the Commonwealth, the validity of a constitutional provision and laws subsequently passed by the legislature creating and putting into force the corporation commission is maintained.

The validity of this body, which is now being questioned by the railroads in their arguments against the freight rates adopted by the commission, has not been brought before the Supreme Court as occurs in this case.

The opinion declares that the State has the inherent power to regulate and control public service corporations operating within its borders, and of prescribing the conveniences and facilities.

The judgment of the corporation commission in the particular case before the court is reversed. The commission reached by the corporation commission, that the companies are bound to run their trains into Strasburg, is held to be free from error, but that the form of order was erroneous, as it affected the rights of Southern Railway Company, when it had not been made a party to the proceeding. It is further held to have been error to require the companies to adopt the mode provided by the amendment of 1877 to the charter of 1867; and that the order should have required the companies to run their trains to the depot at Canton Crossing, in the town of Strasburg, within a given time, leaving them to determine which of the two ways mentioned they would adopt.

THREE FIRMS INCORPORATED.

Contractors, Publishers, and Auctioneers Take Out Papers.

Papers for the incorporation of three local firms were filed in the office of the register of deeds yesterday, as follows: The Hazen-Lattimer Company, general contracting business; capital stock, $112; trustees for the first year: Melvin C. Hazen, Ernest C. Hazen, Joseph B. Lattimer, and John B. Lattimer.

The Navy Publishing Company incorporated, to carry on a general publishing business, and especially the publishing of The Navy; capital stock, $20,000; the following three trustees to serve for the year: Benjamin S. Barker, of this city; Van Brunt, New York, N. Y., and M. Hill, of this city; headquarters, 722 Thirteenth street northwest.

The National Auction Company, to conduct a general auction business; capital stock, $500; five directors to serve for the first year, as follows: Edward Cooper, Edward W. Kinsey, Goldsborough McKnew, Edward Macomber, and John R. Jerrell.

NO DUTY ON GIFTS TO TROOPS.

Men in Cuba May Get Presents from Friends in States.

It has been determined by the provisional governor of Cuba that Christmas gifts sent from the United States to officers, soldiers, and American employees serving in Cuba shall be admitted free of duty if they are imported from the United States for their personal use and benefit, and not for barter or sale, and in reasonable amounts.

In view of the existing laws covering imports into the United States, it will be impossible to provide for the free admission of Christmas gifts coming from officers and soldiers in Cuba to friends in the United States. This could only be done by an amendment of the present tariff laws of the United States, which would require an act of Congress.

GARAGE PERMIT IS REVOKED.

Charles E. Myers' Project Objected to by Property Owners.

Following a hearing accorded property owners yesterday, the Commissioners ordered that the permit for an automobile garage at 62-64 Maryland avenue northwest, issued November 27 by Building Inspector Ashford to Charles E. Myers, be revoked.

Frank Hogan, of Baker, Shee & Hogan, counsel for the protesters, claimed the permit had been issued notwithstanding a number of property owners had forwarded protests to the Engineer Commissioner November 17. The protesters allege that if their consent is withdrawn as ordered, Mr. Myers has not complied with the law, the consent of 75 per cent of the property owners within a radius of 200 feet not having been obtained.

INSANE, DIES WHILE WIFE SUES

James M. Dean, Divorce Defendant, Passes Away at St. Elizabeth's.

Lost Reason When Enjoined from Seeing Bride of Few Months and Was Locked Up.

Insane as the result of family troubles, it is said, with suit for divorce brought by his wife pending in the courts, James M. Dean died yesterday morning in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he had been since November 3. On that day he suddenly went mad, rushed from his optical store, at 708 Thirteenth street northwest, shrieking that incoming customers were about to kill him.

He was captured by the police after a long and exciting chase, and was placed in the hospital.

There his condition became much better, but it was said that his insanity was the result of continued brooding over the divorce suit that was brought against him by his wife, Myrtle L. Dean, in July, 1906. They were married on May 30.

Dean did his best to have the suit compromised during the four months it was pending, but to no avail, and his wife, who had brought her suit on statutory grounds, secured an injunction from the court, prohibiting Dean from calling on her, or seeing her at any time.

It was after this injunction went into effect that Dean's brothers began to notice a change in his mental condition.

When he finally became violent and was locked up, the court ordered an investigation, and the divorce proceedings were suspended until this investigation could be made. It had been set for December 6, the day on which Dean died from pneumonia, after an illness of ten days.

The remains have been turned over to his widow. In addition to her, Dean is survived by three brothers, E. S. Dean, of Baltimore, and William E. Dean and Henry E. Dean, of Howard County, Md. All three are now in Washington to attend the funeral, the arrangements for which have not been made.

TO CONFER ON POLITICS.

Governor-elect Hughes and Woodruff to See President.

Chairman Timothy I. Woodruff, of the New York State Republican committee, who is coming to Washington, Saturday, to attend the annual fall dinner of the Gridiron Club, which will occur that night, will spend a part of the day in conference with President Roosevelt on matters of interest in Empire State politics. He will present to the President the names of a number of candidates for the vacancy made by the resignation of United States District Judge E. R. Thomas, who has been elected to the supreme bench.

Governor-elect Hughes will come to Washington next Wednesday to have a consultation with President Roosevelt. Yesterday the President held conferences with quite a number of important New York Republicans, including William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, chairman of the executive committee of the Republican State committee, and Representatives Parsons, Olcott, Cocks, Calder, and Bennett.
